

Editor's Ramblings

June already, the temperature is improving and the gardens bursting with colour. The lambs in the fields are growing and looking more delicious every day. The mint in my herb garden is giving off a wonderful aroma.

Last month I gave you the easiest way to become a villager, from now on they get harder! Way No.2 is to become an allotment holder where you have lovely views, a new set of friends and soil you just want to keep digging! Freshly picked peas with lamb, is there anything better. Seems to be a theme developing to this months ramblings. I have not met any of you village newcomers yet but hope to this month at one of the many village events, starting with the Big Lunch and Village Picnic on the 2nd (make sure you bring plenty of suncream), and the Country Music Night at the village hall (I shall be on the bar so don't forget to bring identification), there is also advanced warning of a witches night.

For those that had their cars damaged during the police chase in the village, the good news is that the suspect was arrested and has now received a 12 month prison sentence.

If any of you are joining Margaret and me at Glastonbury this month make contact and we will arrange to meet up at the pear cider tent. Plenty of good bands and performers this year, its just a matter of logistics as to who you can see. At the end of May I went to see Muse at the Emirates stadium supported by Dizzy Rascal and Bastille, an excellent evening! Bastille are at Glastonbury on the John Peel stage and worth the trip!
